Magic sponsoring children's I.D. day

Children display identification cards

Casino Magic is sponsoring "Children's Identification Day" at its Magic Dome from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13. Hancock County children between the ages of three and 14 will be fingerprinted and photographed for I.D. tags by officers from the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police departments. All children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Refreshments will be served.

Children's safety a major concern

Protect valuable assets

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL
It's sick, said Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell of cases involving sexual battery of juveniles. These cases seem to disgust law enforcement officers as much as the general public.

In his opinion, individuals who prey on innocent children are not readily capable of being rehabilitated. Their innermost instincts are not easily overcome and these offenders often work themselves into positions that give them opportunities to be around children. That's why children's identification projects such as those conducted by the local police and sheriff's departments are so important to their safety.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil said his department conducts identification projects at the schools and at locations such as Wal-Mart and K-Mart, sources of constant traffic consisting of parents and their children. BSL police Lt. Don Oco and Senior Patrolman Joe Kepfer are heavily into these programs and do them regularly on a large scale about six times a year. Kepfer said the officers process "200-450 per session."

They have portable ID kits to do photographing and laminating. Photo IDs, done on children under 15, include the child's name, address, thumbprint and the school they attend. Parents provide the information and the print is given to them for safekeeping after it is made.

Since fingerprints never change the identification is most useful in cases where a child comes up missing, is involved in a kidnapping, or "God forbid, a body is found," Kepfer said.

In kidnap cases, where a child was taken at a young age and has been missing for some time, the fingerprint may be the only way to establish identity, Kepfer said.

McNeil said that the sexual abuse of children is not a new problem, "it's been a problem quite some time." He said that social service agencies and of course law enforcement agencies have been dealing with these cases for years.

The chief said he would like to see parents held "accountable for where their children are at." He said youngsters are roaming the streets at "2 and 3 in the morning" and many "parents condone it."

He said that thorough background checks are done on those who wish to become leaders in organizations such as the Boy Scouts. He gave this as an example because his department is involved in the Boy Scout Explorer program. Officer Kepfer is advisor to the department's Explorer unit.

The importance of keeping up with your children cannot be denied and a measure, such as having your child fingerprinted, is a small step to take for their protection.

Radiation training certifies personnel in detection work

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
Click...Click...Click. The user hears a constant barrage of clicks, getting louder and louder, stronger with each move that the person makes nearer the object for which they are looking — finally they have found the source of the radiation.

That is what personnel from Hancock Medical Center, the sheriff's department, police departments and fire departments were training for Tuesday night at the hospital.

Jim Maness, a state certified instructor in radiation detection, taught the class. "These people will be trained to determine who or what is contaminated in the event of some sort of accident," Maness said.

The personnel were taught about different types of radiation, along with how to use survey meters which detect gamma and alpha radiation and also the various types of symptoms that people display if contaminated.

"Radioactive material is probably not as dangerous as some chemicals that are transported on the highways. Radioactive material is relatively easy to handle, so therefore, it is pretty easy to prevent people from getting hurt," Maness said.

Upon completion of the class, and passing a written exam, students will be state-certified in radiation monitoring.

The students also learned how to determine the amount of radiation that they, or others, have been exposed to if wearing a dosimeter. A dosimeter can estimate the amount of gamma radiation to which the wearer is exposed.

Man charged with battery in case involving juveniles

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL
Randall Lee Fraley, 42, was arrested at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2 and charged with two counts of sexual battery involving juveniles, reports Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell.

Both Waveland and Bay St. Louis police departments are involved in the case, he said. The arrest stems from a complaint made by the parents of an

Cedar Point residents speak against commercialization

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Residents of Bay St. Louis' Cedar Point area — appearing weary from attending so many meetings lately — made their case yet another time Wednesday for keeping their residential area residential.

Citizens told the Planning and Zoning Commission they want no more casinos, traffic or commercialization in their area. Many of the speakers at the session have turned out for related meetings in the past two months, making the same points.

Two speakers expanded the list of things the residents would like to lock out of the area — one suggested the city write controls on to keep helicopter tours out of the area and limit the height of buildings to the average height of pine trees in the area. Another asked for a ban on laser light shows as well.

Wednesday's meeting was the fifth in a series of seven sessions the commission is holding as it drafts a comprehensive plan for the city's development over the next two decades.

Ward 1 encompasses the Casino Magic tract and Cedar Point tracts that were annexed in 1991 under terms of special agreements that would allow casino developments.

With Casino Magic in place at the former Bay Cove Marina site, residents of the area are adamant that a second casino, proposed on a North Beach Boulevard tract, be kept out of the picture.

In response to a question from the audience, commission chairman Les Fillingame said planners won't feel obligated to put the proposed "Raintree" casino development into the long-range development plan, although it is included in a formal pre-annexation agreement the city signed concerning the Cedar Point tract.

Regardless of the agreement, Fillingame said, the long range plan will recommend what officials see as the most ideal development plan. Implementing the plan with zoning, however, will require addressing the pre-annexation agreement in whole or in part.

In two separate agreements, the city endorsed construction of casinos at Bay Cove Marina and at the Cedar Point site proposed for development by Raintree Casino.

Those agreements stated that the city would seek a comprehensive zoning ordinance which would allow casino oper-

A STORM

By Kay McQuinn

Meat budgets get a break these summer days, with our prices at our area super-markets. Beef leads the list, from whole untrimmed briskets (trimmed briskets are available also) to boneless sirloin tip roasts and chuck roasts. Beef round steaks are also offered at good prices, along with t-bone steaks and ribeye steaks.

There are also good buys in pork cuts, especially pork shoulder roasts. Catfish and shrimp star in the seafood departments. And, there's a wealth of fresh vegetables and fruits to go along with whatever you choose.

Fresh mushrooms and spinach, along with baking potatoes, are extra-good buys. There's also broccoli, that cross between broccoli and cauliflower, and okra, corn, cucumbers and on and on. As for fresh fruit, have you noticed the fresh pineapples, as well as the cantaloupes and honeydews, the grapes and peaches, the oranges and the California strawberries?

I'm just about to "dig" into a fresh mushroom-spinach salad on this warm day, one of my favorites. Sometimes I add strawberries, or sliced onions, or even strips of leftover beef. Here's:

SPINACH AND MUSHROOM SALAD
1 1/2 lbs. fresh spinach
4 green onions with tops, chopped
10 to 12 fresh mushrooms, sliced
6 slices crisp bacon, crumbled, optional
2 Tbsp. capers, drained, optional
Tarragon to your taste

Wash and tear the spinach, removing stems. Wrap in terry cloth towel and crisp in freezer for a bare 5 minutes. Remove to salad bowl and toss with tarragon and green onions. Refrigerate. Just before serving, add bacon, capers and mushrooms. Toss with the following dressing:

VERMOUTH DRESSING
1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1/4 cup dry vermouth
2 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. pepper
1 clove garlic, pressed
1 tsp. salt, optional
3/4 cup olive oil
3/4 cup salad oil

Combine ingredients and shake well, before mixing with salad — From "Louisiana Entertains" cookbook of the Rapides Symphony Guild, Alexandria, La.

This spinach and mushroom salad is also delicious with a simple oil-and-vinegar dressing. I also like fresh spinach salad with orange and/or grapefruit segments.

If you buy one of the pork shoulder roasts, you'll have some tasty leftovers for other meals, such as cold roast pork slices with cheese slices as a cold plate offering, or perhaps:

QUICK AND EASY SWEET AND SOUR PORK
2 cups chunks or strips of leftover cooked pork

1 medium onion, sliced lengthwise
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
1 large bell (green) pepper, cut into strips
1 Tbsp. oil
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
1 cup chicken broth
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 can (13 1/2 oz. approximately) pineapple tidbits, drained

Saute the onion, carrots and bell pepper in the oil, stirring for 3 minutes or until crisp-tender, then remove. Brown the pork pieces a bit, draining off any fat which accumulates.

Combine the cornstarch, broth, vinegar and brown sugar, and bring to a boil, stirring the while. Simmer for a few minutes, then combine with the vegetables, pork and pineapple and heat. Serve with rice. (4 to 6 servings)

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

While describing something about her car, my passenger fumbled for a word, finally pointing toward the left side of my windshield. "That thing," she said, "which is glued to the glass in front of the driver."

"Oh," I said confidently, "you mean the . . . Oh no! It's gone! Somebody stole my inspection tag!"

A clean job indeed it was. Whoever lifted it must have used a razor-type scraper similar to that used at inspection tag stations. Since I always lock my car, the heist may have happened while the car was in the shop for servicing.

"Well first it's out with my receipt," I thought, the steam slowly venting from my head, "in order that the police will not give me a ticket for not having a brake tag."

Then I would have to take the time, which I did not have, to go to the inspection station and get another tag. After a semi-anxious two days, I did that, only to be told I should report it to the police, get an item number, and return. Driving straight to a gas station, I called the police, whose receptionist informed me that my call would be returned. After doing isometrics on a metal post for 30 minutes, I decided my time was worth more than 20 dollars.

So it was back to the inspection station where the line had grown longer and slower. At long last, I reached an inspector who, observing the absence of a sticker on my windshield, demanded my registration papers.

"They stole the tag!" I said indignantly, simultaneously producing the brake tag receipt.

The young lady shook her head. "It's a shame what they're doing. I'll cut it for you."

I did not understand what she meant until I had paid for the tag and she moved to fasten it to the windshield. "I'll cut it for you," she repeated, sticking the tag on, then literally cutting it many times crosswise with her razor.

"If they try to lift it, it will fall to pieces," she concluded with a few flourishes of the sharp instrument. With a heavy sigh I looked at the car clock which said two hours had flown by. Two hours had been wasted because some mindless thief and/or addict wanted a hit! Half of the morning was thrown into reverse and poured down the tube.

Break the chain of evil

Can you imagine, it was just a stolen brake tag which managed to stir up all that mayhem? This suggests that it is not necessarily the size or value of an item which begins the chain of evil, the vicious cycle which tortures all of us.

The chain of evil had struck me, but it had also hit every needy person who would have reached me during the morning hours. It also knocked out the time I would have devoted to a bit of writing and sundry small tasks.

We know all about the chain of evil, yet our awareness is dull until we are put to a personal test of patience. When the heavy links fall on our toes, we come to attention. Then we become fully aware of the vicious cycle created when one ignores or hurts others by selfish, evil pursuits. Financial or other pain pales compared to the loss of time, the emotional stress and the deprivation of help to others.

We have nothing to lose but pain and inconvenience, and we have all to gain by breaking the chain of evil in our lives.

Female entrepreneurs should focus on goals, business trust

Working women have made significant progress over the past 20 years, but opening a business can still be a challenge.

Although the business world is dominated by men, women need to realize they don't always have to play its established rules and perceptions; they can succeed in spite of them, says Dr. Ann Canty, assistant dean of The University of Mississippi School of Business Administration.

"If women keep their goals in mind and realize most business relationships are based on mutual trust rather than gender, then these rules and perceptions are not so difficult to overcome," said Canty, who encourages women to focus on the professionalism of their peers, not their differences.

According to Canty and Michael Vanderlip, director of Ole Miss's Small Business Development Center (SBDC), the procedures and problems inherent in opening a business are the same for women as well as men.

Research has shown that entrepreneurs — whether male or female — share some common characteristics, such as being innovative, more willing to take risks, and able to solve problems and make decisions. These Ole Miss business experts offer some suggestions when starting a business — from the conception of the idea to opening its doors.

• Love your idea. "Be confident that you would open this business even if nobody paid you because for awhile no one will," Vanderlip said.

• Conduct market research. Ask friends or associates if they think your plan is a good idea. If you get enough positive responses, then proceed with more structured research. A university's marketing department or a SBDC can help.

• Develop a business plan. This step has two purposes: It provides a guide to starting and running a business, and it informs potential investors and lenders about your business. A business plan should be precise and exact; the business world does not deal in approximations.

• Seek financing. Present your idea and business plan to whomever you think could lend you the money, be it a friend or bank. If dealing with a bank, be prepared. Drop the business plan by ahead of time, so the loan officer will have a chance to review it before your meeting.

Financing a business is the hurdle most women need help jumping. Always start with your local bank. If you cannot get the money you need there, contact a SBDC for advice on other options, such as minority loans and microloan pools.

Be sure you get the funds you need, not less, Vanderlip said. Undercapitalization is the top reason small businesses fail, followed by poor planning and record keeping.

• Finally, open the doors to your business with the support system in place. For these steps and suggestions to be most beneficial, it is important that women have support systems — friends and family who encourage and help them.

"Most successful women entrepreneurs will tell you that a mentor or family member was instrumental in helping them start their businesses," said Canty.

By following a few guidelines, women can help achieve a balance in rules and perceptions, said Vanderlip, who provided these tips:

• Deal with and work to overcome false perceptions.

Seek out opportunities for training to improve any perceived weaknesses. For example, attend workshops, network with other professionals, etc. You will be taken seriously as a business professional if you are well prepared and goal oriented.

• Dress professionally and appropriately. Avoid overdressing or underdressing by letting the people with whom you are meeting dictate your attire.

• Shake hands. This practice is customary among businessmen. A woman needs to have a firm, confident hand shake to portray an impression of self assurance.

• Network. Identifying role models, joining professional organizations and meeting others in your field add to your ability to succeed, Canty said.

Once a woman has worked to overcome false perceptions and acquired a feasible idea, stable plan, adequate financing and strong support, success should be promising.

For more information on starting a small business, contact the Office of Minority Business Enterprises of the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development, or Doris Vickery and Carol Cook at the Mississippi Small Business Development Center at 232-5001.

Headquartered at Ole Miss' Oxford campus, the Mississippi center oversees the work of SBDCs throughout the state.

ations on both tracts.

In the case of Raintree Casino, the city said efforts should be made to utilize Engman Avenue for access to the property, rather than Beach Boulevard or Dunbar Avenue.

Fillingame says despite the agreements, the feasibility of a casino at the Raintree site is an "iffy" prospect at best, in light of the property's wetland characteristics, the presence of 14 casinos on the Coast, and the overwhelming community sentiment against it.

Wednesday, Carroll Gordon urged that the city not apply a "casino district" designation to the newly annexed area, because that would imply more than one casino could locate in it.

He suggested the city zone the waters where Casino Magic's barge sits for casino purposes, and put other zoning in place on that tract to allow other components of that casino's development. The casino is planning to build a golf course, hotel and lodge accommodations, in addition to its recreational vehicle park and other recreation facilities.

Hwy. 90 speed limit to change to 45 mph

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

There will be many changes on Hwy. 90 soon, everything from a change in the speed limit to another red light, so drivers beware.

Hugh Long, with the Mississippi Department of Transportation, said Friday that he was asked to do a study to determine if the speed limit on Hwy. 90 should be lowered.

"We did a survey of the average speed of 100 cars on Hwy. 90 and also did a tally of how many vehicles drove 90 and determined that the speed limit did need to be lowered," Long said.

According to Long the MDOT is allowed to lower a speed limit up to six miles per hour.

The new speed limit for 90, from Waveland to the Bay St. Louis bridge, will be 45 miles per hour.

The speed limit change was recently adopted by both the Waveland Board of Aldermen and the Bay St. Louis City Council.

"The cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland are not allowed to use radar to monitor speed limits on 90. The only ones allowed to do that are the Mississippi Highway Patrol, so there are not that many law officers monitoring traffic speed on 90," Long said.

But, he continued, there will also be a red light added to the highway at Washington Street near Majik Market.

"The red light has been approved. We are not sure exactly when it will be put in place, but it is coming," Long said.

The red lights on 90 help to control the speed of motorists traveling on the highway and help to regulate and slow down the speed, Long said.

"Traffic has significantly increased on 90, due to gaming and I expect the increase to continue," Long added.

Fraley had been previously charged with similar acts of sexual battery involving juveniles and was on supervised probation by the Mississippi Department of Corrections, Chief Varnell said.

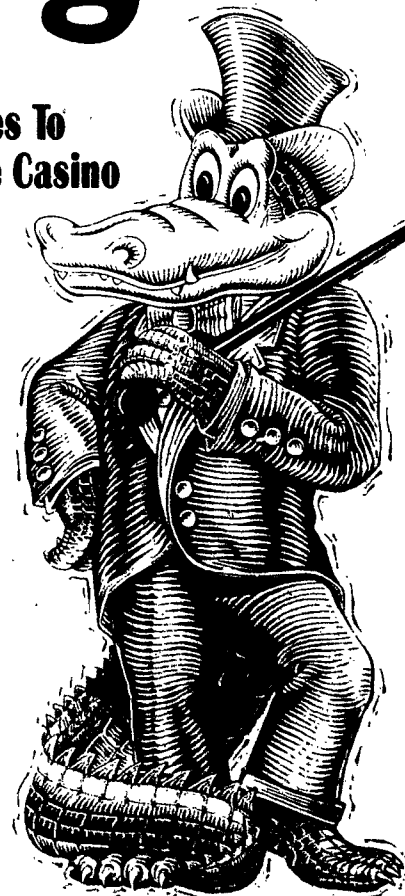

Fraley will make initial appearances in both Waveland and Bay St. Louis Municipal Courts. He is being held in the Hancock Criminal Justice Facility on $100,000 bond, Chief Varnell said.

Detective Ricky Jacobs and Chief Investigator David Stepro of Waveland Police Department and Detectives Kurt Raymond and Shane Corr of the Bay St. Louis Police Department are working on the case.

QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

...by the City of Bay St. Louis for the contestants was a big success. ...party, Bay St. Louis can really go the way.

...the joy and excitement on the faces of the young ladies as they witnessed Bay St. Louis giving them by far the best time they will receive during the pageant.

It is impossible to mention the names of all of those who contributed so much to the success of the party, but I do have to mention Mayor Eddie Favre and Barbara Redding.

Mayor Favre personally saw that everything was just perfect, and Redding was the coordinator who brought it all together.

A perfect party it was, and then some. I got a feeling I was in the days of community parties like I have seen in old movies.

It was young and old and all ages in between just having a very good time.

The food and refreshments were all delicious, and I am sure the 50 young ladies will always remember the time they were contestants in the Miss Teen America Pageant and the party thrown in their honor in the great City of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

So many worked hard for this festive event, including city officials and workers, volunteer citizens, merchants, police, and the list goes on and on.

I want to congratulate each and everyone of you for a job well done.

Bay St. Louis is really A Place Apart.

It appears the Depot is once again on the drawing board for the City of Bay St. Louis.

So many times we have reported it was almost a 'done deal' only to find a few days later there was another stumbling block.

Our Bay St. Louis officials have been working diligently on the Depot for many long months, and it appears the 1928 structure will now receive the facelift it deserves.

Many of us 'oldtimers' can recall the Depot when it was the center of Bay St. Louis' hub of activity, and this was until the early 1950's.

Since I attended Rip University eight years, there are many things I can recall about the Depot's area. I also worked in the old business district 1951-54.

...my eyes and realize the thousands of military on their way to training and war during World War II, traveling through our city, as the troop trains would stop for water and coal.

Train loads of tanks, big guns, airplanes and military vehicles were all a common sight.

There were 30 or so sandwich vendors, who made their living by selling to the soldiers and train passengers.

Truck loads of ice from the Bay Ice Plant, along with truck loads of grocery baskets from Wilmer's, Meyer's, and C&S were loaded on the afternoon train for residents of the Louisiana Marsh.

The Railway Express truck made deliveries of merchandise shipped to our city via train.

A large number of residents from the area worked for the United States Post Office on the mail trains.

The mail cars themselves were really post offices on wheels.

The renovation of the Depot will be a big benefit for the entire city.

We will let you know when the property is officially in the hands of the City of Bay St. Louis.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bay St. Louis needs to be commended for Miss Teen party

Dear Editor,

As a citizen, taxpayer and merchant of Bay St. Louis, I must take this opportunity to commend every person who had any part to play in the mighty party for the Miss Teen Pageant contestants — Mayor Eddie Favre, city council, police department, all other city workers, all cooks, servers and the band (great music).

The decorations (state flags and the large American flag) were as patriotic as one can get.

It was one of the most enjoyable evenings that Betsy and I have had in Bay St. Louis.

Our hosts and second liners set the tone for the evening. The food was excellent — shrimp, crabs, etoufee, even the hot dogs. There could be no better food at any price.

It is evenings like Thursday night that make Bay St. Louis "A Place Apart."

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Espy approves study for state port

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will work jointly with the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Mississippi State University to find new ways to improve agricultural distribution in the region, announced U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor.

"I am extremely pleased that Secretary Espy has approved this joint study," said Taylor. "Hopefully this study will lead to a central produce terminal at the state port in Gulfport and open new markets for all of Mississippi's commercial crop producers."

In a joint letter to Espy, Mississippi's Congressional House delegation requested the U.S. Department of Agriculture's assistance on behalf of the Harrison County Development Commission and state officials.

A terminal market holds great potential for Mississippi farmers. The project could open up national and international markets to regional commercial agricultural interests. Working on the project from the onset, Harrison County Development Director Michael Olivier said the study could open many opportunities for Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas growers.

"It should be pointed out that we are in the middle of what constitutes a 'produce black hole,' said Olivier. The nearest terminal markets are north to St. Louis, east to Atlanta and west to Houston."

Espy said issues under consideration will be expanded to study agricultural distribution in the region, the feasibility of increasing agricultural economic development, and the potential for developing a new market in Gulfport for seasonal agricultural produce.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Senate authorizes funding for educational programs

The U.S. Senate has passed the Improving America's Schools Act, which reauthorizes $12.7 billion for federal elementary and secondary education programs, including roughly $243 million for Mississippi. Senator Thad Cochran announced.

The bill also reauthorizes the $7 billion Chapter 1 Program for Disadvantaged Students. Mississippi could receive $139 million of these funds.

"The Chapter 1 program continues to hold great promise for those children in our society who do not have the same opportunities students in wealthier schools have," said Cochran.

The Senate adopted an amendment co-sponsored by Cochran that prevents the administration from imposing new federal mandates on local school districts in the form of regulations on vocational programs.

The bill reauthorizes several important Cochran initiatives including the Technology for Education Act, which is designed to promote and assist needy schools with equipment purchases; The National Writing Project, which promotes innovative techniques for teaching writing; and reauthorization of the Even Start Program.

"Even Start combines early childhood education and adult basic education into a unified program. Its success is due in part to its ability to build partnerships within families and encourage family members to work together to improve literacy and learning skills," Cochran said.

The bill now goes to conference committee to work out the differences in the House and Senate versions of the bill.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Free enterprise education supports smart decisions on foreign trade

Last year's battle over the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) proved to be a heated political confrontation.

Labor unions organized a publicity campaign of scare tactics claiming that NAFTA would do nothing more than send high-paying jobs to Mexico for cheap labor.

Fortunately, when the dust had settled from the NAFTA debates, thoughtful and analytical minds prevailed and NAFTA passed.

And the treaty has done exactly what it was designed to do. By opening trade barriers between the U.S., Mexico and Canada, American trade exports to those areas have increased steadily.

Already, all signs point to positive growth in job creation affected by NAFTA rather than the doom and gloom predicted by the treaty's opponents.

Mr. Greg Schoepfly, director of Foreign Economic Research in Washington, D.C., says there are not exact numbers yet, but the effects on NAFTA have obviously been positive for American trade exports, which translates into more jobs for the nation's workforce.

The NAFTA saga illustrates the need for an enlightened citizenry on the value of a healthy free enterprise system. People need to now the facts. They also need to know how to translate the facts into real terms that will affect their daily lives.

With that objective in mind, the Mississippi Economic Council has sponsored the Free Enterprise Summer Institute for Teachers for the past 14 years. This year's program focuses on international trade and how issues like NAFTA affect the American economy.

The program provides teachers with innovative lesson materials and ideas for free enterprise studies in the classroom. Additionally, they take the message of free enterprise back to their schools to lead seminars for other teachers.

It is estimated that more than 9,000 Mississippi teachers have received training in free enterprise education through the program.

The objective of MEC's American Enterprise Center, through programs such as the Free Enterprise Summer Institute for Teachers, is to ensure the future of free enterprise — the most vital of America's economic principles.

Brewer's World

By Jimmie Brewer

Striking for gold

Good morning Folks, welcome to another 24 hours of pure paradise in the great South. Fire up the skillet, crank up the mud dispenser and have a little visit with Brewer's World.

I need to make an announcement here, which may or may not disappoint you. As of August 12, 1994 I will be officially on strike. It seems that Mr. Cuevas, our publisher, and myself cannot come to terms on my future contract. I am merely asking for 19.2 million per year for the next five years, excluding my 6 million dollar signing bonus. If I should win an award during the contract period, I am demanding an additional 3 million dollar bonus.

Our contract negotiations were however making some headway. Mr. Cuevas was offering $4.50 per hour with one day vacation after 20 years continuous employment. In addition, as a signing bonus, he is offering to repair my calculator.

However, negotiations stalled when he refused to deposit 7.8 million into my pension plan. He is now talking about some kind of salary cap.

I informed him that he could justify the salaries by making a small increase in subscription costs. I suggested that we raise the price of the Echo from $25 per year to $25,000 per year. I realize it might sound a bit outrageous, but is it anymore ridiculous than what Major League baseball players are demanding?

They are threatening to take away America's favorite pastime, BASEBALL! I mean come on folks, do you guys expect us to agree that you deserve more money than you can spend in 10 lifetimes?

You dudes must have all outgrown your jock straps. Accordingly, all your blood circulation is now going directly to your wallet. Please don't give me that bull that you work hard for your money.

In case you forgot, you don't work, you play baseball!!! That, my friends, is a recreational event, which by the way is enjoyed by millions and millions of folks of all ages, gender and race.

To take that away from kids, who faithfully watch and support their favorite players and teams, is a tragedy. You dudes are gonna break a lot of hearts this summer.

Some of my fondest memories come from sitting in Major League stadiums, eating hot dogs and dreaming of playing third base for the Cincinnati Reds.

So please come back down to earth and reconsider the strike.

All right, Readers, get out there and have a blast. Remember, watch out for those school zones.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to all you teachers who protect the future of our community by educating our children. PEACE.

Book demystifies process

By M. E. Williams

Karl DeVilliers is a supervisor in a Johannesburg, South Africa, mining firm.

His life was a little empty after his wife died and his grown children began lives of their own.

DeVilliers got involved in a local adult literacy program and began tutoring John Ndebele, a 40-year-old ex-miner in search of a job. The relationship enabled Ndebele, who speaks several languages but was unable to read or write in any language, to develop those skills.

DeVilliers found his company was delighted with his outreach work, praising his participation in the literacy project and allowing him time off to work with Ndebele. Additionally, a long-term friendship ensured between the two men that could result in other advantages along the way.

In his new book, Mentoring: A Not So Quick Fix, Dr. David M. Hunt cites examples like DeVilliers and Ndebele to show how mentoring can provide a valuable tool for organizations willing to make it a part of their overall corporate strategy.

Hunt, professor of international management at the University of Southern Mississippi, thinks mentoring can provide companies with significant ways to make a difference — both inside and outside their corporate walls.

"First of all, it's important to define what mentoring is and is not," said Hunt. "It is not merely coaching or teaching, although there are elements of both in mentoring."

Mentoring involves a closer, face-to-face relationship between two people that includes advice and support. It is a powerful form of learning for those involved.

For some companies, Hunt said, mentoring "can be the right tool for the right job — and not just another passing management fad."

Hunt is recognized worldwide as one of America's leading experts on mentoring. He also has lived and worked in at least six foreign countries, written three previous books, and done management consulting and training work worldwide.

"Mentoring: A Not So Quick Fix" is available through Hunt's consulting firm, Hunt Associates International, P.O. Box 16115, Hattiesburg, MS 39404-6115, 601-264-1353; fax 601-264-8320. Cost is $11.

James Lee Burke

By Sherry Schwabacher
James Lee Burke's latest in his Dave Robicheaux series is one of his best yet. Dixie City Jam (Hyperion, $22.95) is a kaleidoscopic view of Louisiana's underbelly — a flash of police corruption, a flicker of the Dixie Mafia, a glimmer of Good Old Boy politics, and, handing over it all, a haze of racism and violence.

Dave is up to his neck in bad guys this time out. Crooked cop Nate Baxter is out to get Dave's old partner, Clete Purcel. The Calucci brothers, two New Orleans Mafiosi, also have a contract out on him. Someone is killing drug dealers in the projects and tearing out their hearts in a Voodoo-style ritual. And somewhere out in the Gulf, off New Iberia, a sunken Nazi submarine waits, its mysterious cargo forgotten since World War II.

Will Buchalter, a sadistic neo-Nazi terrorist, wants it — and no one can stop him — except Dave, our knight-in-(not-so)-shining, somewhat battered armor.

Dave, a recovering alcoholic, is a hero for our times, doing the best he can. When his wife, Bootsy, is assaulted and humiliated by Buchalter, she begins crawling inside the bottle, seemingly with the encouragement of the mysterious Sister Marie Guilbeaux.

Dixie City Jam is a study in dualities — crooked cop Nate Baxter versus (semi-)honest cop Benjamin Motley; evil Sister Marie opposing virtuous Lucinda Bergeron; the odious Calucci brothers countering honorable (by his own standard!) Tommy "Blue Eyes" Lonighan.

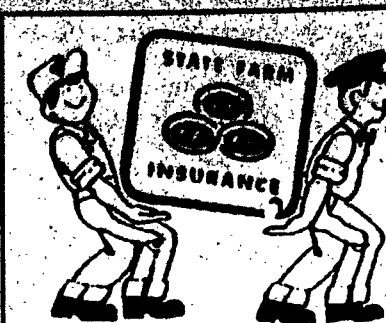

And shadowing all, the loathsome Will Buchalter, one of the most memorable psychopaths of recent fiction. Dave needs all his usual allies to fight this one — and some interesting new ones.

Biker Pearly Blue and the rest of the DTS-OD, MF Alcoholics Anonymous group (read the book if you want to know what the acronym is for!), Brother Oswald Flat, New Orleans businessman Hippo Bimstine — all play their parts in restoring a little light to a dark world.

As always, Burke's descriptions of the bayous and other natural settings of Louisiana are unparalleled. His renderings of New Orleans have just the right amount of gritty realism, mixed with a certain fondness for the city.

James Lee Burke will be reading selections from his novel at 7 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 11 at Bookends Bookstore on Hwy. 90 near the Bay Bridge. For more information, call 467-9623.

Don't let your children's computer time be a waste. A healthy dose of contact is good for much, but experiences on computers need to be balanced with real-life interactions.

• Don't let the computer be a baby sitter. Although anything children do with a computer (turning it on, fiddling with the keyboard or executing operations) breeds familiarity with a creature that will be part of their future, they need guidance and supervision, or they can become obsessed with this new toy.

• Select software designed to teach as it entertains. It'll look as if children are playing a game, but it's intended to help them learn.

Don't expect miracles. Simply buying a computer for your children won't ensure their excellence in the classroom. Computers can't take the place of other basic experiences, nor are they a substitute for things like a parent talking or reading to a child. It's a very helpful tool, but it's not magic.

• Shop around. Talk to someone who knows computers and consult shopper guides, such as Consumer Reports, for quality rating information before buying. And familiarize yourself with the service guarantee, since some breakdowns are inevitable.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION

Home loans

Income from FHA Reverse Mortgage Loans

Beverly Durham
Program Representative
Unity Mortgage Corp.

Available financing options in today's home mortgage loans are many. Here are the major types of home loans made by banks, savings and loans, and mortgage companies in the today's home financing.

Fixed rate loans, adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs), FHA Insured Loans and VA guaranteed loans are the mortgage loans that are in high demand in the United States loan market.

It is true that rising interest rates have driven some consumers to the adjustable-rate loans; however, if you are a homeowner 62 or older (including spouses) and you own and occupy your single family home, you should look at the Federal Housing Administration Reverse Mortgage Loan program.

This FHA Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) is a program that will provide a secure and lifelong retirement income and it is designed with maximum flexibility to meet the homeowner's changing financial needs.

The program allows you to tap home equity and receive tax free (consult your tax advisor) monthly income and/or a line of cash reserve in a manner you select — all while you reside in your home and maintain ownership.

Unlike other loans, you do not repay any funds for as long as you live in your home. Repayment is made when you no longer occupy your home due to a move, sale or death. Under the program, your house must be nearly debt free or debt free for you to be eligible. The money from your reverse mortgage can be used for anything, be it insurance, home repairs, property taxes, health care, you name it — it's yours.

A question asked many times is what amount can I receive on a FHA Reverse Mortgage? This is how it works:

The approved loan amount is determined by a calculation that combines the age of the youngest homeowner, an interest rate determined by the 10-year Treasury Bill and a maximum claim amount.

This claim amount is the market value of your home or the FHA loan limit in the area you reside (presently between $67,500 and $151,725), whichever is less.

Another pertinent question is what is the interest rate charged on the funds that are received? The interest rate is adjustable and set by the value of the one-year Treasury Bill and a lender margin of 1.6 percent.

The rate is determined at the loan closing. It adjusts annually on your loan's anniversary date.

It may only adjust up or down by 2 percent per year. During the loan life, the rate may only adjust up to 5 percent over your first year loan rate.

Annual interest changes do not affect your monthly payments. Adjustments only affect the rate your loan balance grows. Interest is added to your loan balance — not paid out-of-pocket. Interest is charged on funds you actually use, not on your total approved amount (unless you withdraw all your funds).

When making your Reverse Mortgage Loan, most fees can be included in your loan balance — out-of-pocket cost is virtually eliminated. A good faith estimate of fees is provided at application.

Closing fees include an appraisal, mortgage survey, title policy, credit report, attorney and recording fees.

HUD charges a 2 percent mortgage insurance premium based on the maximum claim amount, and there is a lender origination fee.

Generally, closing fees run approximately 3-8 percent of your maximum claim amount.

The best years of your life should be your most financially secured. The Reverse Mortgage may be of great help. For information on this type of mortgage, call the Unity Mortgage Corporation, "The Reverse Mortgage Company."

They will tell you about all of the flexible options that will assist you in determining how you can receive a lump sum of funds or a fixed monthly income. Call 1-800-235-3767.

At a legislative drafting session known as a "markup," expected to occur over the next several days, the Senate Communications Committee is considering two key bills.

Both S. 2111 and S. 1822 propose lifting barriers to communications competition. However, only S. 2111 would bring competition soon enough and completely enough to spark major job growth before the end of the century.

Sponsored by Senators John Breaux (D-La.) and Bob Packwood (R-Ore.), S. 2111 would allow for the creation of new jobs in the telecommunications sector.

WEFA's forecasts indicate that S. 2111-style competition in all areas of telecommunications would create more than 2 million jobs throughout the United States and 18,000 jobs in Mississippi by the year 2000.

That's nearly 12,000 more jobs in the state of Mississippi than would be created by S. 1822, the other bill currently under consideration.

According to WEFA, the job growth would benefit every economic sector in every area of Mississippi.

These job creation numbers clearly demonstrate the importance to Mississippi of bringing full, fair and open competition to the telecommunications market now.

Like S. 2111, S. 1822 does focus on developing competition; however, many provisions of the bill would significantly delay full competition, particularly in the key market segments of long distance telephone and cable TV.

WEFA's forecasts show that the competitive delays embodied in S. 1822 would cost the United States 1.5 million jobs nationwide by the year 2000.

This current assessment of legislation follows a more extensive study WEFA released last year, which found that in order to fully realize these benefits, however, WEFA concluded that the local telephone companies, long distance carriers, cable TV operators and other communications companies must be allowed to compete equally with one another immediately.

Stewart said, "I urge our Mississippi Senators Thad Cochran and Trent Lott to support or cosponsor S. 2111 in the name of open and fair competition and new jobs."

Business seminar announced

State's poultry on course for billion dollar value

By Linda M. Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications
Mississippi's poultry industry is on course to become the state's second billion dollar agricultural commodity by the end of 1994.

Extension specialists announced July 8 that timber exceeded $1 billion in farm value production in 1993, becoming the state's first billion dollar agricultural commodity. Although timber may remain at the billion dollar mark in 1994, Mississippi's poultry industry is ready to take the lead.

Poultry's $923 million farm value placed second to timber's $1.02 billion in 1993. Timber prices have not boosted the industry to the same level in 1994 and are expected to be the main factor in allowing poultry to take the lead.

Dr. Bo Haynes, leader of extension poultry science at Mississippi State University, said the same factors that have helped poultry in recent years will continue to improve the industry in 1994.

"Increased consumer acceptance is a major benefit for poultry. Consumption has been increasing at about 2 pounds per consumer annually," Haynes said. "Fast food chains are increasing the amounts of poultry products on their menus as well."

Haynes said the industry also is doing its best to provide a more consumer-friendly product with easier to prepare, cut-up pieces.

Dr. Bob Williams, extension agricultural economist at MSU, said Mississippi's broiler production has increased about 15 percent though late July, compared to 1993 figures. The state produced 528.2 million broilers in 1993.

Mississippi ranks fifth nationally in pounds of broiler meat produced and is also fifth in overall agricultural income in poultry.

Although commercial egg consumption has declined per person in recent years, an increased population has enabled egg production to remain about the same. The increased acceptance of egg substitutes has not hurt egg production since egg whites are part of the product.

Williams said Mississippi produced 120 million dozen eggs in 1993. Although egg prices are slightly below year-ago figures, production is slightly higher.

Mississippi ranks 17th nationally in egg production.

Haynes said prices have enabled poultry companies to post profits each year for about five years. Feed prices have remained reasonably stable. Costs for raising birds have been consistent with increased prices.

Mississippi will have an opportunity to spotlight its poultry industry when MSU hosts an international meeting of the Poultry Science Association, Aug. 8-11. About 1,000 poultry scientists from agricultural schools across the United States and Canada are expected to attend.

Dubbed "LowDoc" for "low documentation" the program was successfully tested in San Antonio earlier this year and it appears Mississippi will be starting the new lending process immediately following the required lender training.

Spradling added the LowDoc is part of an overall drive in the SBA to reduce bureaucracy and serve clients better. The 43,000 small business concerns in Mississippi will have a more user friendly lending program to obtain credit for their companies/firms.

Applicants who want to borrow more than $50,000 may be asked to provide a few financial documents in addition to the one-page application.

SBA unveils streamlined loans

SBA district director Jack Spradling announced a streamlined lending process designed to make loans up to $100,000 made easy by requiring a one-page application for borrowers.

Until now, SBA clients were required to fill out several pages for a loan application and wait up to 30 days for an approval or decline on bank guaranty loans.

It is designed to appeal to small business people interested in finding ways to provide goods and services to the gaming industry.

The four seminar sponsors also will provide a booth during the expo, where interested small business people may acquire additional information.

For information or to register, call 865-4578.

Seminar helps small business join the game

Helping small businesses find ways to do business with gaming concerns on the Mississippi Gulf Coast is the focus of a special seminar co-sponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Coast's Division of Continuing Education.

The seminar, "Making Connections: The Gaming Industry and Small Business," will be one of 13 seminars offered from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Aug. 10 as part of the Southeastern Gaming Business Expo.

The expo, scheduled for Aug. 9-11 at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum Convention Center, includes a trade show in addition to the special seminars.

Along with USM-Gulf Coast's Division of Continuing Education, the Small Business Development Center, the Coast Chamber and the Gulf Coast Business Technology Center will offer the seminar.

"He's also the one who really got me started professionally when I was a student at St. Stanislaus (Class of '72). Beginning in 10th grade, I'd hit the road with him every Saturday playing country music shows."

All those years of hard work paid off in the late '70's when Tommy played with Moe Bandy for five years. Bransen, Mo., where he has a theater.

Back then, however, Bandy worked out of San Antonio, so Tommy relocated and spent 280 days a year on the road. Marriage to the former Carleen

Duke and Doctor

Tommy Moran is shown playing with Dr. John at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club to celebrate Tommy's year as Duke of the Nereids Ball.

Murphy brought him home, but it didn't end his musical career.

Tommy started playing with Dr. John, using all his vacation time from GE Plastics for their out-of-town engagements — some of them overseas in Japan and Switzerland.

Tommy did all the guitar work on Dr. John's Grammy Award-winning album, "Going Back to New Orleans."

"Because of that album, last year I had the experience of playing in the Mylos Theater in Greece with Dr. John," Tommy adds.

"One of the songs, 'Litanie Des Saints,' has a Greek sound to the music, which sent it to the top of the charts there. Every one of our four shows sold out."

Locally, Tommy has been playing a good bit with Jerry Fisher and the Music Company at the Dock of the Bay. He'll be there throughout August, except on the 13th when he will be 'Stepping Out' for the Krewe of Nereids Fish Fry and Dance at the Hancock County Civic Center.

The music and dancing begin at 9 p.m. and will continue until 1 a.m. for $10 per person.

Fabulous fried fish dinners will be served from 4 to 8 p.m. for $6 each, followed by entertainment by the Nereids Krewe at 8 p.m.

Tickets will be sold at the door, or in advance from a member of Nereids. For information, call Patsy Dubuison at 467-0244.

57th annual Knost Regatta ready to sail

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The Knost Regatta is right around the corner. The all-female regatta will sail on August 20-21 in Pass Christian.

The regatta came about fifty-six years ago when Bernard L. Knost, then commodore of the Pass Christian Yacht Club, created the first all-women sailing regatta in the Gulf of Mexico. Since then it has become a part of the Pass Christian annual summer regatta program.

Knost created the regatta because he feared his mother was afraid of the water. In 1938 he broke the unwritten but understood rules and formed the all-female regatta. Participation has grown from the original five clubs to over fifteen competing clubs. The clubs compete for the coveted Bernard L. Knost Perpetual Trophy, named in honor of its founder.

The Pass Christian Yacht Club has won the trophy 14 times, followed by Biloxi Yacht Club and Bay-Waveland Yacht Club with nine victories each, and Gulfport Yacht Club has claimed the trophy six times. The Southern Yacht Club has won six times and are the defending champion in the regatta. Buccaneer Yacht Club has five wins, while Pensacola Yacht Club and St. Andrew's Bay Yacht Club have three wins and one win, respectively. For more information on the regatta please call Jimmy Griffin at 452-2571 or Evelyn Gregory at 452-2195.

Some friendships not worth risks

TEENTALK

"I'm really confused. My best friend has been through some rough times. She has been living on her own since she was 14. She doesn't have a job, and when she does, she quits. I have always tried to help her out by buying small things here and there.

"Recently, things came up missing at my house after she had been there. At first I thought they had been misplaced. Recently, when I was at her mother's house, $20 disappeared out of my wallet, and I think her brother stole it.

"I don't want to throw away a friendship, but my mother forbids me to have her over when no one else is here. My mother wants me to stay away from her type of all together.

my expensive things and my money back. Please help."

Your friend certainly has had some hard knocks in life. It also sounds as if she has made some bad choices. I know you want to continue being a friend.

You need to take a hard look at how you can be a friend and still protect yourself from bad consequences that seem to surround your friend.

I can't help but wonder what you're getting out of this friendship besides having your things stolen. The friend and her family seem to benefit the most by taking your possessions.

It seems you're allowing yourself to be the victim. You keep spending time with this girl and her family, and you keep being taken advantage of. That's a very poor basis for a friendship.

If confronting her won't do any good, then what are your choices if you don't want your valuables to keep disappearing? You can keep hanging around her and her family and you may continue to watch your things disappear.

The other choice is to stop seeing her, write off your losses and realize that you tried to be a friend but, instead, you were taken advantage of. Chalk it up to a bad experience.

If you choose to continue being the victim, you will not be helping this girl. You will be enabling her to continue her dishonest (and perhaps criminal) activity. You probably can't help her, but you can protect yourself.

You also should realize that you could be blamed for something you didn't do if your friend ends up on the wrong side of the law. Remember that people may assume your morals are like this girl's if you continue to spend time with her. You do have some tough and important decisions to make. Good luck.

If you have questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.
